

DAIRY CENTER Connection

News from the Northeast Iowa Community-Based Dairy Foundation

Breakfast on the Farm a HUGE Success

The 2nd Annual Breakfast on the Farm event was held Saturday, June 11 at the Dairy Center in Calmar. The menu included pancakes, sausage, eggs, cheese, milk, juice, and coffee for only a free will donation. The family-oriented event included a tour of the 250-cow dairy farm, petting zoo, and visitors could milk a cow. The number of people served this year was 600; last year's attendance was 400 people.

"A large percentage of the US population lives in an urban or suburban environment, and are slightly disconnected from agriculture and food production," said Jenn Bentley event committee organizer. "We thought a Breakfast on the Farm was the perfect answer to bring people together to our facility and to see modern dairy practices." Dairy Center Coordinator Megan Kregel said, "We think it is very important that the public understand where their food comes from, that it is produced safely, and why dairy producers do what they do."

Attendees had a chance to learn how cows and calves are cared for, how milk is harvested, pet a calf, take a tram ride, see a John Deere tractor, TMR mixer, milk truck, and eat ice cream along with having a delicious breakfast. Questions about dairy farming and food production were encouraged throughout the tour as the event focused on those who do not normally have access to dairy farms.

Many local and regional organizations worked together to make this event a reality, including The Northeast Iowa Dairy Foundation, the Midwest Dairy Association, area dairy promotional groups, the Iowa Egg Council, Northeast Iowa Community College, the Iowa Pork Producers, Iowa State University, Iowa dairy processors, and local 4-H clubs.

The Dairy Center opened 10 years ago, and was created by the Northeast Iowa Dairy Foundation in partnership with Iowa State University and Northeast Iowa Community College. The purpose of the Dairy Foundation and The Dairy Center is to enhance the dairy industry by providing education, demonstration, and research.

About 120 students use The Dairy

Center while attending NICC classes for dairy science and other agriculture majors. "It's very important to educate not only students, but also consumers. American farmers are providing consumers with more and better quality food than ever before. In fact, one farmer now supplies food for more than 144 people in the United States and abroad compared with just 25.8 people in 1960 and on less land every year" says Kregel.

Many people don't understand the very important economic impact of the dairy industry. Every dairy cow is worth $16,000 each year in economic activity. Iowa's 215,000 cows contribute about $1.5 billion industry to the state's economy annually, according to the Iowa State Dairy Association. That is something everyone should care about.

Be sure to keep your eyes open for next years Breakfast on the Farm date, coming June 2012!

A Word from the President - Gary Kregel

As your new president of the NE Iowa Dairy Foundation, let me introduce myself. I am Gary Kregel a dairy producer from Guttenberg, Iowa. We have a mixed herd of Holsteins and Jerseys along with a cash grain operation.

It maybe hard to believe, the dairy center is ten years old and is now entering its second decade. However, 2011 is going to be a transition year for the Dairy Foundation. The foundation is entering a partnership agreement with NICC that will enable a substantial reinvestment into facilities at the center. The new 20 year financing package will make possible adding and remodeling facilities to improve cow flow, cow comfort, and relieve overcrowding making it much easier to keep cows cleaner, thus improving milk quality. There are no plans to expand herd size only to better manage the current herd to be as profitable and presentable as possible. We take seriously our responsibility of creating a positive image of our industry and are taking steps at the center to be tour ready everyday.

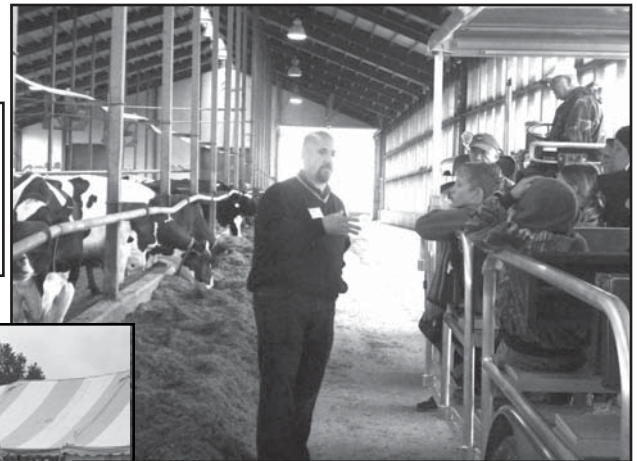

The student programming and educational agreement with NICC continues to be excellent. Now with the addition of a new dairy coordinator we hope to put additional emphasis on public and producer education.

The coordinator position is a joint venture with Midwest Dairy Association (MDA), and will be actively promoting the Dairy Center, NICC dairy program, the dairy industry, and the dairy producer.

To close remember the Dairy Center is yours. Feel free to come visit at anytime. We are here to educate, not only the students, but everyone, especially our non farm friends.

Changing for the Future

On Wednesday, May 11, members of the Northeast Iowa Dairy Foundation and representatives of Northeast Iowa Community College met at the Dairy Center to discuss and vote on the assumptions of loans and the transfer of fixed assets from the Foundation to NICC.

Gary Kregel, Dairy Foundation President, lead a question and answer session concerning the purchase agreement and a Memorandum of Understanding that stated that once the financial obligations of the twenty year note are met the Dairy Foundation can purchase the dairy farm facility and real estate back for one dollar. Foundation members unanimously approved the Memorandum of Understanding and also voted to approve the purchase agreement. The remaining loan balance of $1.56 million was transferred to NICC. No changes will be made to the Dairy Center. The operations committee and farm manager will continue to be the decision makers when it comes to farm management. NICC will approve an annual operating budget and all management will remain the same with farm employees remaining Dairy Foundation employees. Along with this agreement there will be additional funds for the Dairy Foundation to make improvements and repairs to the Dairy Center. Kregel said, "These improvements are yet to be determined by the Operations Committee, but they will be along the lines of improving cow comfort, the overall appearance of the facility, and adding more stalls to accommodate the current herd size."

Kregel named new Dairy Center Coordinator

Megan Kregel was named the new Dairy Center Coordinator for the Northeast Iowa Dairy Foundation.

Her new job as Dairy Center coordinator is a natural progression. Her first day on the job was May 10, just three days after she graduated from Iowa State University.

“I was here when this place opened, and I was here when the grazing center opened, and I was here as student, and now I’m here as an employee,” said Kregel, 22. “Maybe some day I’ll be here with my kids. I want to see it continue.”

Kregel’s family milks 260 cows near Guttenberg. She grew up helping on the farm. Kregel completed the dairy program at NICC and transferred to ISU in 2009 where she majored in dairy science and minored in journalism and mass communications. 4-H, FFA and a year as Alternate Iowa Dairy Princess have all added to her experiences.

Her position as Dairy Center coordinator for the Northeast Iowa Community-Based Dairy Foundation is funded by Midwest Dairy Association.

“They want me to be the face of the foundation,” Kregel said.

As Dairy Center coordinator, Kregel will do public relations and events management. She will work with ISU Extension on Iowa’s Dairy Story tours. She will head up a committee with NICC and Extension representatives, dairy producers and industry people to come up with ideas for other events that will benefit the Dairy Foundation.

She will assist Dave Lawstuen, head of NICC dairy programs, with student recruitment and retention, and represent the foundation at events like the National FFA Convention, the World Dairy Expo and the National Holstein Convention.

“This place and the northeast Iowa dairy industry have had such an impact on my life, and I have such respect for the dairy industry and its producers,” Kregel said.

“I want to be able to advocate and promote for them to the public.”
